Dear Dr. Rodney Harrison,

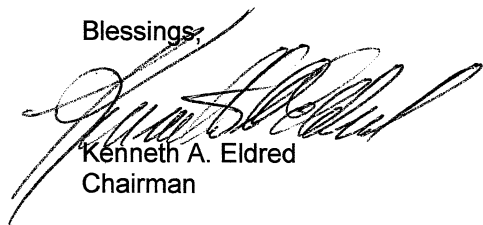

I am very pleased to hear that Jeremy Johnston is applying for his doctoral studies at Midwestern Baptist Theological Seminary. I cannot think of a finer candidate. He loves the Lord completely. This love is reflected in all that he does and says. I have watched him walk his faith in some of the worst circumstances. It never waivers. He is steadfast.

He is a great preacher and is focused on delivering the whole Gospel without fear. He is bold in his message and straight in his delivery. He is young and has the ability to reach many of the unreached youth in our nation. I can only imagine what a fine finishing to his education will do in his service to the Lord. As a businessman, I easily relate to his faith. It is infectious and encouraging.

He is smart and hard working. He manages a large church with great maturity while working many hours a week on furthering his education. While you may train him, he will never end his education to understand more deeply the things of God. He will go beyond your expectations. He has certainly impressed me with his continuing quest.

I whole heartedly endorse him to you as a candidate for a PhD. He will thrive in the environment and make you proud as he serves our Lord with power, dignity and grace.

Blessings,

Kenneth A. Eldred
